About us

GRATA International specializes in complex transborder projects, allowing us to successfully implement these projects due to our presence in almost twenty countries. Our team is effective as possible. Another strong point of our firm is the unique practical experience in implementing projects in the area of construction, infrastructure, energy, transport and other fields. Our legal support for large construction projects is acknowledged by international experts.

Our legal team is composed of specialists with a thorough knowledge of legislation and law, which allows us to find practical solutions and always try to be as effective as possible. Another strong point of our firm is the unique practical experience in implementing projects in the area of construction, infrastructure, energy, transport and other fields. Our legal support for large construction projects is acknowledged by international experts.

We provide services in dispute resolution and litigation, including arbitrations, mediations. We have represented our clients in numerous litigations on the matters of competition. We have investigated of antitrust authorities and in representation of our clients. Our lawyers are acknowledged experts in the field of competition law.

We have offices in 19 countries work closely on cross-geographical coverage. GRATA International's regional offices are connected by a robust network of local lawyers working together with our international legal experts. GRATA is acknowledged as an emerging international law firm by international and regional publications and bar associations.

However, there is a need to mention that sometimes we are forced to reduce rental rates. Due to the difficult economic situation in 2020, associated with the spread of a new coronavirus infection, many areas of business have suffered serious losses, including landlords who were forced to reduce rental rates. A significant portion of the losses was borne by landlords, who reduced or even canceled rental payments.

In addition, the financial crisis was accompanied by a decline in demand for rental space, which led to a decrease in rental income for many landlords. This situation was compounded by the fact that many companies were forced to reduce their spending, which resulted in lower demand for office or commercial space.

However, this crisis has also led to a greater emphasis on the importance of providing quality service and customer satisfaction. Many landlords have taken steps to improve the conditions of rental space, such as investing in upgrades and improving the appearance of the building.

Due to the difficult economic situation in 2020, associated with the spread of a new coronavirus infection, many areas of business have suffered serious losses, including landlords who were forced to reduce rental rates. A significant portion of the losses was borne by landlords, who reduced or even canceled rental payments.

However, this crisis has also led to a greater emphasis on the importance of providing quality service and customer satisfaction. Many landlords have taken steps to improve the conditions of rental space, such as investing in upgrades and improving the appearance of the building.

In addition, the financial crisis was accompanied by a decline in demand for rental space, which led to a decrease in rental income for many landlords. This situation was compounded by the fact that many companies were forced to reduce their spending, which resulted in lower demand for office or commercial space.

The crisis has also led to a greater emphasis on the importance of providing quality service and customer satisfaction. Many landlords have taken steps to improve the conditions of rental space, such as investing in upgrades and improving the appearance of the building.

However, this crisis has also led to a greater emphasis on the importance of providing quality service and customer satisfaction. Many landlords have taken steps to improve the conditions of rental space, such as investing in upgrades and improving the appearance of the building.

Due to the difficult economic situation in 2020, associated with the spread of a new coronavirus infection, many areas of business have suffered serious losses, including landlords who were forced to reduce rental rates. A significant portion of the losses was borne by landlords, who reduced or even canceled rental payments.

However, this crisis has also led to a greater emphasis on the importance of providing quality service and customer satisfaction. Many landlords have taken steps to improve the conditions of rental space, such as investing in upgrades and improving the appearance of the building.

In addition, the financial crisis was accompanied by a decline in demand for rental space, which led to a decrease in rental income for many landlords. This situation was compounded by the fact that many companies were forced to reduce their spending, which resulted in lower demand for office or commercial space.

The crisis has also led to a greater emphasis on the importance of providing quality service and customer satisfaction. Many landlords have taken steps to improve the conditions of rental space, such as investing in upgrades and improving the appearance of the building.

For a more detailed understanding of the situation, please visit our website or contact us directly for more information.

The Ministry of justice of the Republic of Kazakhstan No. 1104, dated 25 July 2000. For the purpose of protecting trade secrets can extend. There is no special law in the Republic of Kazakhstan that regulates the protection of trade secrets. Moreover, the legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan does not provide for an exhaustive definition of the term 'trade secret'. The provisions on trade secrets are differentiated through various regulatory legal acts, which define the concept and conditions for protection of trade secrets. The concept and conditions for protection of trade secrets are not regulated by the Legislation of the Republic of Kazakhstan.